

Master of Animal Science by Distance Education

The Department of Animal Science at N.C. State University is proud to offer its Master of Animal Science through Distance Education.

Many of the required courses for the MAS are presently available as Distance Education options, with new courses each semester

Admissions information: www.ncsu.edu/grad/

For further information contact:
Dr. Shannon Pratt-Phillips
919-513-1117
Email: Shannon_Phillips@ncsu.edu

Program requires a minimum of 36 credit hours.

19 credits core courses including:

ANS 601: Animal Science Seminar (or Discipline Seminar)
ST 511: Experimental Statistics for Biological Sciences I

Choose one of:

AEE 521 Program Planning in Agri. Extension Education
AEE 523 Adult Education in Agriculture
AEE 526 Information Technologies in Ag Extension Education

Choose one Genetics:

ANS 540: Selection of Domestic Animals
ANS 575: Current Topics in Genomics and Proteomics

Choose one Nutrition:

ANS 550: Applied Ruminant Nutrition
NTR 500: Principles of Human Nutrition

Choose one Physiology:

ANS 530: Adv. Applied Reproductive Physiology
ANS 552: Adv. Reproductive Physiology and Biotechnology

Choose at least one other core course from Departmental electives

17 credits of electives from departments including Physiology, Nutrition, Zoology, etc.

*The courses listed above are only the DE ready courses; other non-DE courses are available to meet core requirements.

Department of Animal Science

http://www.cals.ncsu.edu/an_sci/home/home.html

DELTA

<http://distance.ncsu.edu/>

COLLEGE OF
AGRICULTURE & LIFE SCIENCES
ACADEMICS ▲ RESEARCH ▲ EXTENSION

